Wireless Support Services

Supporting Your Wireless Solutions Wherever You Are

Support Options

Customers have realized a better return on investment when they take advantage of fast servicing and return of their wireless products. They experience more uptime and employee productivity because of enhanced communications. However, customers notice a significant change in support after a product's warranty expires when they do not have one of the varying levels of support contracts available. If uptime and productivity are important to you after your warranty expires, Polycom provides you with a variety of support options.

Why Purchase Wireless Support?

Purchase Wireless Support Services if you have:

- A mission-critical environment that requires maximum uptime
- Most of your other technology products under support contracts
- Limited technical expertise at any of your locations
- Wireless products that are no longer under warranty

Which Wireless Support Service Fits Your Needs Best?

If your environment fits the following description, then Advanced Plus Wireless Support is your best choice:

- Your environment requires maximum availability of communications with employees in various locations
- You require onsite response for your wireless infrastructure products due to their critical role in your core business

If your environment fits the following description, then Advanced Wireless Support is your best choice:

- Your environment does not have stringent uptime communications requirements
- You want rapid replacement of any wireless infrastructure and telephone products to minimize loss of communications and the affect to your business

If your environment fits the following description, then Priority Wireless Support is your best choice:

- You have technical expertise to resolve many of the infrastructure and wireless telephone questions
- You stock spare infrastructure and wireless telephone products

If you fit the following description, then Assured Wireless Support is your best choice:

- You use infrastructure and wireless telephone solutions in non-critical environments
- You have the technical expertise in-house to address most infrastructure and wireless telephone questions

Benefits
